

The Colonel

a film by Lisa Hayes

super 8, 4 minutes, © 1999

directed by Lisa Hayes

starring: Lisa Hayes, Lisa Cupoli, Matthew Perry, Joseph Callaghan, and Alan McNairn.

original music by Sticky Rice

exhibited on BetaSP or VHS

A short film inspired by the flawed love of fried chicken. You can smell the chicken. You want the chicken. But you can't admit it to the rest of the world.

About the Director/Producer: Lisa Hayes is an active member of the Toronto independent film community. To date, she has completed six short films, as Producer, Director and Writer. Her award winning films have been shown at over 100 film festivals around the world, and have been broadcast in France, Canada, USA, Spain, and Australia. Lisa is currently Producing her first feature film, Goldirocks, with writer / director Paula Tiberius. Together the team has been selected for the National Screen Institute's Features First Training Programme, where they will further develop Goldirocks. Lisa was the Technical Co-ordinator of Toronto's film co-op, The Liaison of Independent Filmmakers of Toronto (LIFT) for over five years, and is currently an Associate Producer at Savi Media Inc. with veteran producer, Alexandra Raffé.

Filmography: Lez Be Friends, 2000, 13.5 minutes, 35 mm.
My Grandma's Boyfriend, 1999, 11 minutes 16 mm
The Colonel, 1999, 4 minutes, super 8
Women Are Not Little Men, 1998, 15 minutes, 16 mm
Grandpa's Fingers, 1997, 4.5 minutes, 16 mm
DIKE, 1996, 8.5 minutes, 16 mm

